Here is what the Wells Herald says about the candidacy of H. A. Comins, of White Pine, who thinks he wants to be governor.

"RAVINGS OF A SCHOOLBOY"

"The editorial utterances of the Winnemucca Silver State are not the words of the newspaperman, but the ravings of the boy just from school. That paper a few days ago took some 'weighty' exceptions to some that appeared in The Herald of last week regarding the candidacy of H. A. Comins in an essay about the virtues of that gentleman.

The boy just from school chair of the Silver State, and attempts to write republican editorials because the terms of his lease stipulate that he must, has not been in Nevada politics long or he would not think much of Comins as a republican candidate for governor; he would consider that Comins had not been in the party long enough to be in good standing. Two years ago at this time he was training with the Silver Party. He had been a Silverite for some time; he went to the convention at Winnemucca, and, because the Silver Party kicked him out, and the democrats would not have him, he had to go some place, and finally drifted back into the republican party, which he had deserted years before. Now, he wants to be governor on the republican ticket and the boy just from school is in with him. Again The Herald asserts, "What in thunder made Senator Comins believe that anyone could consider him good material for governor?"

The schoolboy came back in the next issue of the Silver State and just gave the Herald fits because the Herald made fun of him. He said that Comins is the most honest man in the state of Nevada, and that even if he did jump around from one party to another he is a nice good man, and a good republican.

At last there is a standard for the measurement of republicans; established by Nixon's own paper. Line up with Comins, the jumper.

THIS MAN SAW A LIGHT

E. J. Daughters, a heavy speculator and mining operator has given out an interview in Salt Lake in which he says that more millionaires will come from Nevada in the next two years than ever in its history.

He also says that Nevada is getting down to a solid basis as a mining state more men are making more money in this state than in any other mineral region on earth. He calls upon Salt Lake to build a railroad to Ely under pain of losing a big share of what will be the richest commerce of the country, that of the New Nevada.

CHAMPION THIEF AT EAST GATE

Antone Schmidt, an honest German built a saloon at East Gate and stocked it with liquors, bar fixtures and the appurtenances that go with a regular mining camp saloon. He had visions of wealth and affluence that only were disturbed by a call to come to Hazen on business.

Schmidt's business in the saloon increased so that he was compelled to hire a barkeeper, and after many admonitions he left this barkeeper, a man named Preston, in charge of the saloon while he went to Hazen.

Preston was a live one all right. While Schmidt was at Hazen, Preston sold out the saloon and appurtenances thereto, and when a miner came along and asked him what he intended to do with the empty house, he sold that to the miner for lumber.

The next morning Schmidt could be seen coming over the desert from Hazen. When he arrived where his saloon should have been, there was troubles. The sheriff is looking for Preston and Schmidt is looking for his saloon, and his lager beer, and his fixtures and Preston.

Judge Melvin, of Oakland, Cal., was elected grand exalted ruler of the Elks at Denver last night.
